
"Meet Their Need and They Will Read"

Reading Workshop with Natalie Hale for Families & Educators

- Topic: teaching reading to learners with Down syndrome, DS/autism, and other developmental delays.
- Award-winning author
- Innovative educator
- Parent of an adult son with DS
- For over 25 years,
  - a national and
  - international speaker

Since 1992, across the country and across international borders (Bulgaria, India, Canada), Natalie has been giving parents and educators common sense how-to tools and strategies based on best practice, research, and experience.

Participants are able to walk away and immediately put what they have learned into practice. Afternoon sessions are hands-on, creating personal books for your learner and learning how to modify favorite trade books: books their peers love to read, but modified so your learner has the joy of actually reading the book themselves.

Natalie answers the questions of Why? How? When? and With What? These are questions that can mystify parents as well as educators because of the abundance of conflicting advice or recommendations.

For more information, call Natalie at 408.438.3268 or go to www.specialreads.com/speaker/